

Adopted

Dear Child of the King,

'I have chosen you...' – my words of spirit and life to you today and every day. Adoption carries within a choice- a deliberate decision and desire to be related.

Often, before the joy of adoption, there in the pain of abandonment and rejection. Even though I was the only begotten Son of God, I experienced the pain and anguish of being abandoned as I hung on the cross.

My cry, 'My God, why have you forsaken me?' was real. But, remember, my Father's response was resurrection and the fulfillment of the joy He had set before me which is having brothers and sisters like you to share eternity with.

My sacrifice opened the door of adoption for you and it was well worth it for me. I love being able to present you holy, unblameable and irreproachable before our Father. And I love looking forward to coming back for you so that we can be together forever. Even now the Spirit is present in you, working on your resemblance to me and my love and bringing His gifts to flow to you and through you. Be expectant!

Jesus
